

Florence Nightingale – The Lady with the Lamp

Why was Florence Nightingale important?

In their study of Florence Nightingale, often helpfully compared to the lesser-known Mary Seacole, pupils learn not only about the pioneering role of a determined lady in a man's world, they also learn about important breakthroughs in the health of the nation. This topic is a great vehicle for moving from 'then and now' comparisons of hospital conditions to looking at changes within Florence's long lifetime and to realise that her work with the training nurses after the Crimean war was even more important than her direct role in helping soldiers recover from their wounds. The debate about who better deserves a statue outside St Thomas' hospital, Florence or Mary Seacole, provides an immediate and real-life focus for the tricky concept of interpretations of the past.

1820

Florence was born in Florence, Italy

1851

Florence became a nurse

1853

The Crimean War started.

1854

Florence travelled to the war in Russia to make sure the hospitals were clean.

1855

Florence came back to England as Miss Smith and as a heroine.

1859

Florence opened a training school for nurses in London.

1883

Queen Victoria awarded Florence the Royal Red Cross.

1910

Florence died at the age of 90

Florence Nightingale

Key vocabulary

Crimea	Part of Russia where a war was fought between Britain and France and Turkey on one side and Russia on the other
Hygiene hygienic-	Making things clean - opposite unhygienic
Infection	When germs get in a wound and make you ill
Injured	Painful cut or shot that had to be mended
Medicine	Special type of drink to make you better
Sanitation	Keeping things clean, especially by washing
Scutari	The place in the Crimea where Florence had her hospital
Soldier	Man who fought in an army
Ward	Parts of hospitals with beds for injured soldiers
Wound (say woo-nd)	Normally a bad cut

Top takeaways

Having studied this topic you should be able to understand:

1. Florence is a famous nurse remembered for her work helping soldiers get better in the Crimean war. She became known as the Lady of the Lamp.
2. She got rid of the dirt, cleaned the sheets and made everyone wash their hands. She was very well organised and knew how to get things done
3. After the war Florence really improved hospitals at home.
4. Her work training nurses was really important. Nurses have to obey her rules on how to be a good nurse, even today.
5. She wrote lots of books on nursing which were easy to read.
6. She is remembered today and medals with her name on are given to nurses, even though she died over 100 years ago

Who's who?

William Nightingale

Her father who taught her at home lots of things that usually only men studied at that time

William Russell

The information he wrote in The Times newspaper told people at home how awful life for the soldiers was in the Crimea

Sidney Herbert

Strong friend of Florence who was in charge of how the Crimean war was fought

Queen Victoria

The queen for most of Florence's long life. She gave Florence lots of medals

Mary Seacole

A black lady who went to the Crimea to help the soldiers, looking after them well, even on the battlefield

Columbus

Why we are learning about Columbus

You are learning about Columbus because he is a world-famous navigator and explorer whose daring voyages in search of the Indies led to the opening of the Americas. The world today would be a very different place if he had not set sail. His life is a great example of someone following their dreams and never giving up. You may be learning about Columbus as part of an Explorers topic when you also look at other explorers such as Neil Armstrong who landed on the moon. The difference was, of course, that Columbus lived 500 years before and was actually looking to find his way to the riches of India and China and thought he had found them, when he had actually arrived in the West Indies!

Key vocabulary

Explorer	A person who explores a new or unfamiliar area
Indians	The original people living in North America when Columbus arrived
Far East	The countries of eastern and south-eastern Asia (such as China, Japan, North Korea, South Korea, and Vietnam)
Navigator	A person who explores by sea.
New World	Land west of the Atlantic Ocean: North, Central, and South America
Route	A way or course taken in getting from a starting point to a destination.
Voyage	A long journey involving travel by sea

Who's who; what's what?

Ferdinand	Spanish King who paid for the expedition of Christopher Columbus
Isabella	Spanish Queen who paid for the expedition of Christopher Columbus
Santa Maria	Christopher Columbus' flagship on his first voyage to America
Nina	Second ship on his first voyage to America
Pinta	Third, and fastest, ship on his first voyage to America

Top takeaways

In this topic you will learn:

1. Columbus is often thought to have discovered America in 1492 when, of course, there were already native people living there.
2. What he did do was to discover a land that people from Europe started to settle in as the basis of modern-day America - which is why they have a Columbus day still on 12 October each year.
3. This changed the world as he kick-started the move of people from Europe to the Americas, what became known as the New World.
4. His story of daring determination travelling into the unknown has inspired many adventurers since.
5. Although often seen as a hero, recently people have changed their minds about him because they think he treated the native Indians he came across very cruelly.

The world Map in 1492 and today

